where she numbers Francise Wittiams, Caroline Orden-Jones, and Madeleine Slater among her tent mates. Short Man Can Be Hero It was by way of being an inspira-In Movies and on Stage tion to have the invitations for the marriage reception of May Power and Lieut. "Bill" Lightle read "from 4 to 6 o'clock;" for by that simple expedient

Walthall in 'Birth of Nation' Definitely Dispels Dread of Actor Folk.

FAME CROWNS HIS EFFORTS

First Dug Ditch as Italian Laborer-Climaxed Work as "Little Colonel"

Some fifty thousand Washingtonians have been added to the most of people have investigated the matter and willing to state that a man short in stature can so visualize their idea of a hero that they tose all sense of height values except as they relate to the artistry of perfect performance.

The eternal question of the theater The eternal question of the theater whether a short man can be a hero—a question that has kept some wonderful sctors and still more wonderful singers off the stage in times past—has been definitely settled by Henry B. Walthall—the young man whom critics agreed was easily the best artist among all the actors in motion pictures, long before Walthall became famous as the "little colonel" of "The Birth of the Nation."

For more than five years it has been difficult for even the most blase critic of the drama—and this includes dramatics the drama—and this includes dramatics with the most highbrow tendencies—to discuss the work of Henry Walthall in motion picture productions soberly.

A young man, a student, and such a consummate artist, they all considered him far beyond the average of motion picture stars, and critics feared they would be accused of extravagance in placing on paper their estimates of this young man's work.

In Boston, in New York, in newspapers and magazines devoted to discussion of the dramatic from purely literary or artistic viewpoints. Walthall's work has always been given the most careful consideration and the highest praise.

Climax of Fame.

It is through "The Birth of the Na-tion" that Walthall's work has become known to those theatergoers who are not familiar with other motion pictures. He has made the most decided impression on them and many inquiries are received at the theater and by the dramatic editor of The Times as to just who he is.

Walthall is an actor with a considerable stage experience behind him. While he has never lived in Washington, many intimate friends of the late United States Senator Walthall of Mississippi, will remember him as a very small boy visiting his uncle, Senator Walthall, during the latter's last term of office.

The actor branch of the Walthall family lived in Birmingham, Ala., where Henry B. was born. He was graduated from the high schools of his city and was completing a college course when war with Spain was declared. He immediately entered the volunteeers and served throughout the war, although he did not get nearer to the front than Tampa, Fla.

Walthall always had been interested in the stage and in the drama as an art. He had taken part in theatricals at school and at college, and decided to go on the stage after the war.

He went to New York from the place of his discharge and began at the bottom as an extra man with a stock company. The fact that he was a real artist was soon discovered by his stage director, but his small stature was against his being selected for very important parts.

As a juvenile and especially in the against his being selected for very important parts.

As a juvenile and especially in the parts of very young men, Waithall made a reputation among theatrical folk that led to his being given important parts in important productions.

Aided by Henry Miller. Henry Miller is credited with giv ing Walthall his best chance on the stage, and it was while supporting Miller in "The Great Divide" that Walthall's attention was turned to Walthall's attention was turned to motion pictures.

He was in New York at the time, and was persuaded by a friend who was then playing in motion pictures to go to the old Biograph studio and watch a rehearsal.

David W. Griffith saw the quiet, reserved young man watching the production of the play with much more interest than was usual in visitors, and asking questions about the methods adopted that showed his interest.

methods adopted that showed his interest.

Griffith and Walthall discussed the drama and the place of motion pictures in the drama. The discussion became so interesting to both men that Griffith finally persuaded Walthall to try the pictures, simply as an experiment to convince him what could be done. The men recognized in each other the big vision and broad outlook on the art in which they were both so deeply interested.

Walthall's first appearance in motion pictures was as an Italian laborer. In those days it was not easy to get people to agree to let motion picture actors utilize their dwellings or workshops for picture ylays as it is now.

Griffith wanted to produce this picture with as much realism as possible. He made an agreement with a contractor who had undertaken to dig attench, to dig part of the trench for him if he would permit the photographer to use it for a film play.

The contractor agreed and Walthall was put to work digging in the trench. The scene was to be a short one, but Griffith kept him at it. When his back seemed about to break and big blisters appeared on both hands, Walthall asked Griffith if he hadn't almost enough film.

Had to Make Good.

"I got all the film I wanted an hour the director replied, "but I promised the contractor you'd dig Beauties At Hop. about a yard more of trench for him than you've done, so please hurry up and finish it!"

The Italian laborer flashed on the screen was the best piece of dramatic work that had been done up to that work that had been done up to that time either by Griffith or by Walthall. The artistry of the real actor came out on the screen as it had not been able to show on the stage. It con-vinced Walthall and Griffith that each had found something real. Since then Walthall has been con-tinuously in picture work. He was one

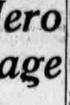

Since then Walthall has been continuously in picture work. He was one of Mary Pickford's leading men; he played opposite Dorothy Bernard. Florence Lawrence, Florence Turner, and went with Griffith to the Reliance Company, where he and Griffith produced what they had both long wanted to do—a series of plays based on Poe's poems.

When the cast for "The Birth of a Nation" was made up nobody but Walthall was considered for the part of Col. Ben Cameron. In that part he has accomplished more for the acting art in motion pictures than anyone has ever done.

Rumors Proves Wrong As To Wichfeld House. Richmond, as I have heard rumored.

ever done.

The triumph of the great spectacle is considered a joint victory for Griffith and Waithall, and with dramatic critics and students of the drama his work in this one part—to say nothing of others he has enacted—will give him a permanent place in the hall of fame of the American drama.

HENRY B. WALTHALL.

Items of Interest and Impor-

(Continued from Sixth Page.)

is storping at the Army and Navy Club

Between times he is either flying about to parties or is kept busy refusing invi-

Wherever spring may lead the young man's fancy, it leads his elders to serious consideration of their summer plans. To them May means migration.

and the question that everybody asks everybody these days is "Where are

It's a question that's particularly mo mentous to official folk, who may be kept in town late by the business of statecraft. So it will be the Vice President and Mrs. Marshall, who have right on here most of the summer.

other Cabinet families are planning any extended vacation. The Lansings go, if they can, to their happy hunting ground on Lake Ontario. The McAdoos are likely to settle not far from Shady

Jersey. The Daniels, as a rule, do not migrate. They arrange all sorts of little junkets aboard the Dolphin, with maybe a visit of a week or two to the seaside resort in North Carolina where they have gone in summer since the

The Lansings by the way are spending the week-end at Annapolis as the guests of the Superintendent of the Naval Academy, Capt. Edward W. Eberle, and Mrs. Eberle.

The Gregorys-at least Mrs. Gregory and the children-expect to go back to Monterey, which they found very pleas-

Mrs. Gregory is just back from a visit to her mother, Mrs. Naile, at her home in Texas, where all her brothers and sisters were gathered for the first family reunion since they were all married and drifted away from the home nest.

She is so enthusiastic about her visit and although she's glad to be home

The Houstons have found nothing that coast, and will return to Woods Hole. where they have spent several summers. The Burlesons are still without plans, other than that they will be late Lanes. , Secretary and Mrs. Lane and in town; likewise the Redfields and the

Mrs. Adolph Caspar Miller on a short trip up the James river, are expected

The Secretary of Labor and Mrs. Wilson and their family are tremendously fond of their home in Blossburg, and always spend as much of the summe pretty girls in the world." This from the gentleman who was dealing out tickets to the flock of maidens on their way to Annapolis for the "Easter hop"

-dear me, can it have been a week ago? Truly it seemed that half the pretty girls in town were on the car

Now that spring has come, the love ly old city on the Savern is thronged with Washington girls over each week-there are now baseball, la crosse and other sports to be witnessed, not to

No. Mrs. Aksel Wichfeld has not leased her house for the apring months to the Arthur Graham Glasgows. of have made inquiries, and Mrs. Wich-feld expressed great surprise at the suggestion. She and Mr. Wichfeld ex-pect to remain in town during the spring, and will probably go to Swift-moore for most of the summer. Frances Moore is, of course in camp.

the boat races and sailing

"middies".

end. In addition to the usual attrac there as circumstances allow.

she hated to leave Texas.

back this afternoon.

Scores of Capital

when we boarded it.

parties.

tions, the hops-and the ant last summer, where the Attorney General joins them whenever he can.

boys were bables.

Mrs. Gregory Plans to Return to Monterey.

tations, for everyone seems anxious to show him a good time.

you going this year?"

Summer Plans

Being Formed.

duty to test the flying machines

tance of Past, Present, and

NEWS OF CAPITAL

JEAN ELIOT TELLS

the crowd which is the bane of an apartment wedding was avoided. The Powers, moreover, have an apartment with large sunshiny rooms which open up attrac-tively, and on the day of the ceremony was sweet with blossoms. The drawing rooms had a proper can opy, and all the palms and floral arrangements which go to make a wed-ding complete; but the dinning room had an original touch in the graceful baskets of Mrs. Ward roses and lavender "lay-locks," which formed a frieze about the plate rail. And the paims and branch-ing ferns marched half way down the long apartment house hall to meet and

Marooned In England

Visited By Her Son. Mrs. Appoline Alexander Blair, who has been at her English home since before the war broke out, is rejoicing in a visit from her son, Percy Blair, who has been driving an ambulance at the French front. He is now on a month's

Mrs. Blair writes that Eimleigh, her place at Canterbury, is lovely in its spring costume—but bewalls the English climate which she declares is mostly ing arrangements as we know them are almost unknown in rural England; but the right tight little island breeds a sturdy race with whom exercise is a religion and fresh air a mania.

Fair Rookies Visit

Chevy Chase Club. Many of the fair rookles at the woman's preparedness camp spend their spare time at the Chevy Chase Club. It is tantalizingly near to the camp, and all this week the open tennis tourna-ment has been an added attraction. Every day between 5 and 6 o'clock groups of the girls are to be seen roaming about the clubhouse grounds in their khaki uniforms, followed by throng of admirers, all asking a thousand questions about camp life. Taking advantage of open week at the club, ever so many of the members have been giving bridge, luncheon, and tes parties. The lawn is literally covered daily with tables surorunded by groups of gayly dressed women, playing cards and smoking, if you please. Mrs. Joe Leiter has had several tea parties on the portico, also Louise Hill, little Miss Bartlett, from the navy yard; Mrs. Clark Waggaman, Mrs. George Minnigerode, usually with Karl Minnigerode's wife, formerly Mary Montague; Alice Shepard, Mrs. B. H. Warner, Jr., and Mrs. Walter Dunlop, with her cunning little daughter. Some of the others hav ing tea one day were Mrs. James A. Woodruff, Mrs. Bobby Patterson, Pocahontag Butler, Dean Caldwell, Mrs. Arthur Foraker, Mrs. Ryan Devereux, Margaret Devereux, Ballard Moore, Fred Chapin, Dorothy Deeble, Louise Bayne, Frank Smoot, Mrs. John Ed-wards, Mrs. Gordon Jones, and Nancy, her daughter; Hughes Oliphant-but, dear me, I must get my letter in the mail. With much love, yours fondly, JEAN ELIOT.

no vacation in sight; and obviously the Secretary of War and Mrs. Baker, who Colonial Dames Council expect to move into "In the Woods" early in June, are counting on staying Concludes Sessions Now would it appear that most of the

The National Council, Colonial Dames of America,- yesterday concluded its annual session with the election of offi-

Those elected were: President, Mrs. widow of the late associate justice of the United States Supreme Court; vice presidents Mrs. Nathaniel T. Bacon, presidents Mrs. Nathaniel T. Bacon, Rhode Island; Mrs. Alexi L. Sofussat, Maryland; Mrs. Overton Lea, Tennessee; secretary, Mrs. Charles Miller, Delaware; tressurer, Mrs. Alexander J. Cassatt, of Pennsylvania; registrar, Mrs. Franklin B. Dexter, Connecticut, and historian, Miss Cornella B. Williams, Illinois.

Yesterday afternoon the Colonial Dames were given a reception at the old National Museum by Dr. Charles D. Walcott, secretary of the Snithsonian Institution, Mrs. Walcott Mrs. Julian James, and Mrs. Rose Goevernor Hoes received.

Unitarian Club Will Hear Reminiscences

C. B. Lockwood, an Ohio octogenarian, will give '-reminiscences of a long life" at the open meet by of the Unitarian Club in All Souls Church Wednesday evening. Mr. Lockwood is eighty-seven years old and was an intimate of Emyears old and was an intimate of Emerson, Alcott, and Sanborn. He will refer in his address to his Blondship with Emerson and Emersons philosophy of life. Secretary of War Baker has assured Grosvenor Driwe, president of the club, that he will introduce Mr. Leckwood if he is free from official duties that evening. they like better than the Massachusetts

Purchase of Dog for

Nancy, who have been with Mr. and LOS ANGELES, May 7 .- Sorva, Russian wolf hound, valued at $500, was actually sold for a buffalo nickel, was the decision of Judge Wellborn in a suit brought for the recovery of the dog by Miss Marjorie D. Cole, daughter of Harry Cole, local broker.

The suit was against Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Smith, who, according to the testimony, went to the Cole horse and took the dog away with them after a dispute over other matters had arisen between them and Mrs. Cole, the mother of Marjorie. The court ruled that they must give the dog back or pay $500. Russian wolf hound, valued at $500, was "I didn't know there were so many

Griffith Film Boasts Marvelous Audiences

Within the first year of its existence the Griffith style of theatrical production as expressed in "The Birth of a Nation" played to more people in the producer's native country than any play ducer's native country than any play ever produced in America has played to during its entire career, with the possible exception of "Uncle Tom's Cabin." The fact that the latter play is fifty-six years old, and is still a drawing card explains why it outstrips this newcomer in the field.

Tomorrow afternoon this attraction begins the fourth week of its engagement in this city at the National, and as the last two weeks of the run are now being announced it will have a record of five weeks to its credit, or sixty-odd performances, when the engagement closes May 20.

D. C. Mail Business Grows.

An increase of 22.67 per cent is shown in the report of the receipts for the Washington Postoffice for April, made public today. The total receipts for last month were $165,572.59. THE MYSTERIES OF MYRA

An Inspiring Novel and Motion Picture Drama

Written by Hereward Carrington.

(Copyright, 1918, by the Star Company, All Poreign Rights Reserved).

(Continued from Page Fourteen.) Continued from Fage Fourteen, can hardly detect it," he said, finally.
"But there is nothing wrong."
"Nothing wrong! Why, doctor " * " you're murdering my child before my eyes!" screamed the anguished mother.
"Be caim, Mrs. Maynard. Your daughter astral body has left us, and she is on some strange journey which will mean much to her," he answered, steadily.

will mean much to her," he answered, steadily.
"What do you mean?"
"I believe that she has sent her soul in search of the persons who are persecuting her. You know that she is the victim of a terrible conspiracy. You have lost two other daughters in the same way—perhaps your husband died at their hands." His voice was resonant with mastery.

He fairly thundered at her, as he added:

"Now, you must help me and help Miss Myra for her own sake. The time has come for us to face the truth without fear. Be quiet, until we get some sign from her."

Mrs. Maynard looked at him piteously, for the mother instinct was stronger than logic, more urgent than thoughts for the future. Yet there was the professional force in his command, the insistence of the physician, the earnestess, indeed, of a greater emotion than mere scientic interest. Her intuition told her that Payson Alden cared more for her daughter than even he would admit. And so she resigned herself to the inevitable, with a blind faith in his ability to save the situation. But nature was not to be denied. The shock of Myra's appearance, in its ghastly replica of the same fate which had overtaken the other two sisters at her age, the mental suffering which the family tragedies had kept continually in her mind combined to bring a snapping of the overtaxed nerves.

She fainted, and the physician ran to her side.

He placed her in another chair, and her side.

He placed her in another chair, and administered first aid, torn between con-

He placed her in another chair, and administered first aid, torn between conflicting emotions.

Had he been studying the face of his subject he might have noticed about this time a tremulous quivering of the muscles which indicated that the souljourney was not all placid!

The Black Order, in which it seemed continual watchfuless was the rule of its evil genius, was in session. Obedient to instruction from their ruler, the celebrants were heavily hooded in the black masks. Only the two small eye-holes betrayed any expression of humanity in the sombre-garbed figures which sat motionless about the center disc. No man knew his neighbor, for there were more members than the thirteen who usually formed its meeting quota. The leader of ceremonies was refilling the tripod-fane with fresh incense. The pungent vapor arose in grotesque puffs and sinuous curves to the sooty ceiling. Suddenly one of the group, with a grunt of mingled fright and amasement, nudged his nearest fellow, and pointed toward the smoke above the brazier.

The black cloud had become hazy gray in spots and had assumed a startling shape.

The figure of a young girl, with hands

The figure of a young girl, with hands affrightedly clasped was discernible in the shadowy contours. Her appealing eyes were wide with amazement. eyes were wide with amazement.

One by one the brethern of the unholy community drew attention to the strange phenomena. Used as they were to strange occurrences, still here was something which passed their understanding. And yet the ever-present fear of the Master's punishment stilled their tongues!

But one of them, the last of the circle to be appraised, sprang unsteadily to his feet.

He advanced toward the incerse tri-

The angry voice replied from within: "Enter, Varney! But I forbade conversation, and I commanded all the brethern to wear their hoods!" ern to wear their hoods!"

Arthur Varney, pressing his hand to his forehead, the victim of two oddly conflicting emotions, groped into the pitchy grotto. The Spectral Head shone malignantly at him, as its blue light fused with the red glow which gradually disclosed the features of the ruler. "Master! She is here! We all saw Myra materialize in the incense smoke! What does it mean?"

A laugh of exhultation, more horrid than even his baleful tones of threatening, hissed through the evil potentate's lips.

ening, hissed through the evil poten-tate's lips.

"How did you see it?" he spoke, eagerly.
"She faded into the smoke; I could have sworn that it was her fiesh and blood, and yet she disappeared once more!"

"It is her astral body, Varney! Hasten! Tell the brethern to recite the death mantra! Chant and will in unison to break the astral thread! We have victory in our grasp!"

Varney turned to obey; then his heart impulse asserted itself again.

"Oh, Master! Can she not be spared for me? I love her!" he begged.

"Foo! Do you not know that she can be yours for a thousand thousand of years after we have taken her soul away? Obey! You learned the penalty once before!"

Varney besitated, and head drooping, that he will introduce Mr. of if he is free from official at evening.

The ceremonial priest thread!"

The ceremonial priest thread! We have victory in our grasp!"

The ceremonial priest thread! We have victory in our grasp!"

The ceremonial priest thread! We have victory in our grasp!"

The ceremonial priest thread! We have victory in our grasp!"

The ceremonial priest thread!"

The ceremonial priest thread!"

The ceremonial priest thread!"

The ceremonial priest thread!" "It is her astral body, Varney! Has-air.

Then, under the guidance of the leader, they swayed back and forth, hissing the cabalistic phrase of occult death.
Each time the celebrants completed the black magic mantra "Om Parl Hum!" they raised their arms, and with a quick jerk pantomined the gesture of breaking an invisible thread.
Their eyes were intent upon the rolling smoke clouds.
Gradually the form of the miserable

ing smoke clouds.

Gradually the form of the miserable girl materialized in the vapors, and her face evidenced a frightful struggle against the evil power which was en-

SATISFACTION

Hotel Lenox Boston

Reflecting in every phase of its distinctive service the refinements and comforts of the best homes.

ALL THROUGH TRAINS MET AT BACK BAY STATIONS BY UNIFORMED PORTER.

L. C. Prior, Manager.

The astral form sank to the position of entreaty on bended knees. The pite-ous look, the pleading arms, the struggle ous look, the pleading arms, the struggle for human existence racked the emolions of Varney; yet, his fear of the great captain of evil within the curtained portal, his avaricious trust in that promise of future reward kept him to his task.

"Mine for a thousand thousand of years!" he murmured, as his voice led the chierus of all the rest.

But unknown to any of the others one will was fighting them although the brown hands were weaving the same ominous restures through the air.

The Oriental, his erstwhile calm features gnarled in a supreme contortion which echoed the spiritual battle within his soul, was fighting against the psychic momentum, that diabolical undertow of the thirteen other souls about him.

Within his chambes even the Master.

him.

Within his chamber even the Master, bending now to the right and now left. In time with the rhythm of the celebrants without, was adding the power of his tremendous will to the murderous onslaught.

The Hindoo saw the girl sinking beneath the oppression of the outnumbering will; she was succumbing in this maddening maelstrom of devillah tyranny!

maddening maelstrom of devilish tyranny!

"She is a flower crushed beneath the feet of a multitude!" he thought, as he threw all the power of his trained mind, inured to concentration through years of esoteric study in the Far East. A bird among beasts of prey!"

But the astral figure was weakening. The little hands now covered the dropping head as though to ward off the blows of the cruel assailants.

"She is lost!" muttered the Hindoo; in despair.

in despair.
"We are triumphant!" exclaimed Var-ney, under his breath, as his dark eyes gleamed exultantly.

CHAPTER XVI. Prayer When Science Fails.

R. ALDEN had returned to the side of the silent body. Mrs. Maynard, resuscitated, leaned over the white face, stroking the aureate locks tenderly. "Look, doctor!" she exclaimed, almost in a shriek. "See the cold perspiration on her forehead—it is dripping wet. Oh, doctor, Myra is dying!" She sank to her knees hopelessly. Mother'a instinct, the prompting of a thousand years in such a stress, agserted itself. Mrs. Maynard buried her face in her hands on Myra's lap as her lips moved in barely audible prayer. "What can I do!" and Alden's lips trembled, for he too had lost faith in his ability to bring back the wandering spirit.

He looked about him in nervous frensy. Mrs. Maynard, resuscitated,

He looked about him in nervous frensy.

Then he too sank to his knees, to add his entreaties to the mother's.

Unwittingly they had cast against the spell of the devil worshipers the only antidote to that pervasive force: humility, faith, a concentration of white magic power more intense than even the powers of the spirits of evil. Neither of them saw the fluttering of the eyelids nor the softening relaxation of the frigid face.

But Myra, as she returned to earthly vision, looked down upon the two figures—gently, not surprised—as though it were the most natural act in the world.

standing. And yet the ever-present fear of the Master's punishment stilled their tongues!

But one of them, the last of the circle to be appraised, sprang unsteadily to his feet.

He advanced toward the incense tripod, and drew back his black hood, the better to see the astonishing vision.

At first an exclamation of horror escaped his lips, and then he cried out stridently:

"By the left hand of Satan! It is Myra Maynard herself!"

His companions rose excitedly, as the apparition faded into the darker shades of the smoke.

He rushed toward the curtains to the inner chamber.

"Master! Master! I must speak to you!"

The angry voice replied from within: n the world.

more tremendous vital force than he had ever realized was his.

"Heaven be praised," he said earnest-iy, "We—thought—you—had—gone forever."
The girl lifted her arms. Then she

The girl lifted her arms. Then single frowned.
"Oh, how they hurt!"
Aiden hurried to his desk for some liniment. He rubbed and massaged the muscles with his inimitable skill as he smiled into her eyes reassur-as he smiled into her eyes reassuringly.

"They will be all right in a few minutes now. Don't worry about that. The astral came back this way first. You use your hands to express your emotions so much that they are more sensitive than any other part of your body. That is because you are a musician as well. Do you feel bad any place else?"

"Here," and Myra placed a hand over "Here," and Myra placed a hand over her heart a bit weakly. "I feel as though something had been tugging, tugging oh, to the breaking point!" "What do you remember?" asked

Alden apprehensively. "Perhaps that will explain it." Myra closed her eyes reminiscently. She was silent for a minute or two as her mother and Alden bent over her anxiously.

"Can you recall it now?" urged the doctor doctor.
"Nothing except—incense. Oh, such horrible incense! And men—men singing such a gueer song; they were all in black. They waved their hands—and— Om Parl Hum! What on earth can that She looked up at him ludicrously.

Alden was puzzled and shook "Dr. Alden, Myra, must go home. She is debrious." insisted Mrs. Maynard. Alden nodded understandingly. Myra rose weakly from the chair, and hen another memory same to her.

"Oh, yes! I saw this—"
She gaye the first and thumb sign of the devil worshipers. Alden's pleasant face was drawn into a scowl of fury as he realized the significance of this. He stormed about the laboratory. Myra and even her mother were surprised at the tempest of rage. "It's that accursed Black Order. I'm going there now myself. I'll put an end to this." he cried, beating one palm with his cienched fist.

Architects' Specialties Artists' Colorman SCHMIDT 719-721 13th St, N. W Builders' Exchange Bldg. (Corridor Entrance).

"But. Dr. Alden, don't you realize your danger?" pleaded Myra impetuously, a new and surprising light in her eyes, which Alden in his wrath did not notice.

"Myra, you must go home with me at once, child," interrupted her mother. Alden hurried to help her with her wrabs. As he turned to assist Myra the girl's entreaties convinced him that her interest had deepened. His own hand trembled as he took here to assure her that he was well able to guard nimsolf.

were and surplishing light in her eyes, which Alden in his wrath did not notice.

"Myra, you must go home with me at once, child," interrupted her mother, alden hurried to help her with her wrath. Alden hurried to help her with her was a first surplished as he cook here to assure her then her meters that deepend. His own the her there the was belied as he cook here to assure her then her meters had deepend. His own to make the how the her then her was a belied him with his mende now—far better than if his mende now—far better than of this menace now—far better than of the warry. We have too finch to fight for now, both yon and I, for me to fight for now, both yon and I, for me to fight for now, both yon and I, for me to fight for now, both yon and I, for me to fight for now, both yon and I, for me to fight for now, both yon and I, for me to fight for now, both yon and I, for me to fight for now, both yon and I, for me to fight for now, both yon and I, for me to fight for now, both yon and I, for me to fight for now, both yon and I, for me to fight for now, both yon and I, for me to fight for now, both yon and I, for me to fight for now, both yon and I, for me to fight for now, both yon and I, for me to fight for now, both yon and I, for me to fight for now, both yon and I, for me to fight for now, both yon and I, for me to fight for now, both you and I, for me to fight for now, both you and I, for me to fight for now, both you and I, for me to fight for now, both you and I, for me to fight for now, both you and I, for me to fight for now, both you and I, for me to fight for now, both you and I, for me to fight for now, both you and I, for me to fight for now, both you and I, for me to fight for now, both you and I, for me to fight for now, both you and I, for me to fight for now, both you and I, for me to fight for now, both you and I, for me to fight for now, both you and I, for me to fight for now, both you and I, for me to fight for now, both you and I, for me to fight for now and you and I, for me to fight

"Spirits is spirits," he muttered, "but a may surprise these assassins!"
He slipped the weapon into his hip pocket and hurried to his telephone.
The central operator seemed unusually dilatory. But at last a welcome voice responded.
"All Professor Hail I am glad to "Ali, Professor Haji, I am glad to reach you. Can you hurry up to my residence? I have many important deelopments to recount. There was a musical laugh at the other end of the wire as the Hindoo re-

There was a musical laugh at the other end of the wire as the Hindoo replied eagerly:

"Is she all right, Doctor? I know of much, yet I have feared for the return of the astral. You know, if it were drawn back too quickly it might derange the reason, or have a dangerous physiological effect. Once, when I projected myself—"

But Alden interrupted impatiently.
"She is splendid. She is a wonderful psychic herself, and the experiment was successful, after all. I have even convinced her mother of the serious business ahcad—and now she believes. But, now I must see you at once."

"Very well, my good friend. But I am busy on a new kind of work—I, a high caste Brahmin, am become a common tradesman—a tailor, and for my faithful comrade, Dr. Alden!"

The physician was almost irritable.

"This is too serious for jesting. I must get into the Black Order immediately!" he reiterated.

"Exactly, Doctor Alden. And I am now in my humble lodgings, pricking my thumbs and fingers with needles, as I concentrate with all the strength of a yogi trained mind upon the tremendous task of duplicating for you my own

LOCAL DRUGGIST USES "DRECO" IN HIS OWN HOME

Had Seen So Many Persons Benefited By the New Remedy, Gives It to His Wife With Splendid Results

"So many people were buying Dreco in our store and telling of the wonderful benefits they were getting from it, I decided to give it to my wife," said Mr. G. B. Bury, jr., the well-known and popular Anacostia druggist. "You know druggists don't give their own families medicine unless they are positive what they are giving. Of course, I didn't exactly know the formula of Dreco, but everyone who would buy a bottle would come back and speak in the highest terms of it, so I decided to try her on it. She can't take quinine, for the smallest dose breaks her out all over with a rash in an hour, so there were many can't take quinine, for the smallest dose breaks her out all over with a rash in an hour, so there were many tonics I couldn't let her take. I want to say that I have never seen anyone improve as she has since taking two bottles. She has gained in weight and strength, complexion cleared up, has a good appetite, digestion fine and entirely well of constipation. I think Dreco a wonderful combination of extracts of roots and herbs and we recommend it to all our customers."

Several thousand people in Washington already know of the marvelous restorative, corrective and vitalizing powers of Dreco, the herbal stomach remedy. Many who have believed themselves beyond help have been restored after all other medicines have failed. Anyone suffering from stomach trouble, gas, fermentation, heavy, distressed feeling after eating or xetiring, or that have blood impurities or constipation should get Dreco at any O'Donnell Drug Store. Bury's in Anacostia, Allen's in Alexandria, Price, $1.00.—Adv.

EXCURSIONS

OLD POINT COMFORT Round $4.00 Trip

Fridays and Saturdays
Good to return up to and including following Monday.
SPECIAL TICKETS including stateroom berth and accommodations at $8.00 Monday 58.00

Friday to Monday 512.50
Saturday to Tuesday ... $12.50
Friday to Tuesday ... Saturday to Wednesday $17.00 NEW YORK and BOSTON BY SEA City Ticket Office, 731 15th St. N. W. (Woodward Building) NORFOLK & WASHINGTON

TIMES WANT ADS

STEAMBOAT CO.

BRING RESULTS

and malevolent organization. We will enter together as soon as I can complete my task. I will come to you at once."
"Very good. What has happened since you were admitted?" demanded Alden, eager in spite of his desige for day may save us from terrible years to come."

Dramatized by Charles W. Goddard.

Myra had aged since the arrival in the house of Dr. Alden only a few days but an eternity in their strain on her emotions. There was a surprising depth in her meaning which disturbed her mother. She looked down at the drawn. Ured face of the girl with stirring concern. She realized that overnight her nestling had become a woman.

"Let us talk no more about it, child." But as they mounted the piazza steps to ring the summons for Willis, Myra drew back with a scream of terror.

"What's the matter, Myra?"

"Look at the knocker? Didn't you see that face, with its thumbs pointing up?" cried the girl, cowering nervously behind her mother.

Mrs. Maynard regarded Myra with a forced calm, and then drew out her iorgnette. She surveyed the brass head and turned toward Myra—perplexed, dismayed.

"My child, that same old foolish, grin-

"My child, that same old foolish, grin-ning knocker has been there for years. There is nothing wrong with it!"

The girl peered again, and then cover-ed her face with her hands. O. mother! It is that terrible man whose face has appeared so many times. He made what Dr. Alden calls the sign of the devil worshipers. But now he has gone!"

now he has gone!"
Willis was swinging the portal, and Myra shied past the knocker, followed by her mother.

As she reached the drawing room she sank into a divan, breathing heavily, although the girl tried to compose herself.
"It was binry—as though it were a red electric light, mother. " " Oh, we must end this all soon, or I shall go mad, mad!" she sobbed, miserably.

Her mother placed her arm about the trembling shallders.

trembling shoulders.
"Myra, my child—I fear that perhaps you are already—"
She did not complete the sentence.
(To be continued next Sunday.)

See It Tomorrow at the Leader. Theater, 9th, between E and F.—Advt.

Her Status. He-What's her social status? She (grimly)-Standing room only!-

With Your Hair You Would Look Ten Years Younger

How often we have heard this expression concerning a prematurely bald young-old man. It is absolutely unnecessary that any man should be subjected to such sympathy from his friends, for there is a preparation on the market which, if used in time will remove all symptoms of falling hair, dandruff, and irritations of the scalp and promote the growth of the hair.

If you have been experimenting with preparations containing cocoanut oil or alkalis (if it foams it contains alkalis) throw them away at once! Go to O'Donnell's Drug Store, 904 F street, and ask for a 50c bottle of Speiser's Scalp Tonic. Use it according to directions, and in a reasonable time the most satisfactory results will be obtained Remember, Mr. O'Donnell guarantees this preparation personally -if it fails, ask him for your

DANCING

MRS. COBB, 100 EYE ST. N. W. Phone Main 2842. Lessons in day or evening. Assembly Dances Every Monday Evening.

NATIONAL RIFLES ARMORY. Every Mon., Wed., Thurs., Sat. eves. Dan-ing. 8:30 to 12. Cooled by electric fans. HARTLEY'S, Prof. and Mrs., 1226 19th st. nw., all dancing taught; private and class 75c hour; 10 lessons, 45. Ph. N., 2184, Est. 1905.

MISS CHAPPELEAR, PHONE NORTH 6544

SUMMER RATES, Main 5679, PRIVATE LESSONS, 75c. PROF. WYNDHAM, 816 12th st. N. W.

MILLER'S BELASCO THEATER: Phone